FORGIVING EYES

written by Dan Parks

I don't know what it's gonna take to reach you

How many lessons will it take to teach you

That there's no way you'll ever make it alone?

You say, "There's nothing better than a good time"

But where you're looking now, I know you won't find any peace

Until you turn around and look at Jesus

'Cause His arms are open wide

To hold you and tell you that He loves you so

And there's nothing you have to hide

He wants to forgive you, and call you His own

Won't you turn around and see His forgiving eyes?

I don't know when he's gonna open your eyes

How long you're gonna listen to the same lies

But one day, you're gonna know for sure

I pray he'll spare you causing yourself more grief

That you'll find the lasting love that you need, and his peace

When you turn around and look at Jesus

'Cause His arms are open wide

To hold you and tell you that He loves you so

And there's nothing you have to hide

He wants to forgive you, and call you His own

Won't you turn around and see Him?

'Cause His arms are open wide

To hold you and tell you that He loves you so

And there's nothing you have to hide

He wants to forgive you, and call you His own

Won't you turn around and see His forgiving eyes?

'Cause His arms are open wide

To hold you and tell you that He loves you so

And there's nothing you have to hide

He wants to forgive you, and call you His own

Won't you turn around and see His forgiving eyes?